Document on Normalization

CET CELL will be conducting examinations on multiple shifts for MBA CET's. The candidates will be given different sets of questions in every shift, and it is quite possible that despite all efforts to maintain equivalence among various question papers, the difficulty level of these question papers administered in different shifts may not be exactly the same. In order to overcome such a situation, Normalization Method will be used for ensuring that candidates are neither benefited nor disadvantaged due to the difficulty level of the examination.

The process of Normalization is an established practice for comparing candidate scores across multi shift papers and is similar to those being adopted in other large educational selection tests conducted in India.

Percentile Scores: Percentile scores are scores based on the relative performance of all those who appear for the examination. Basically, the marks obtained are transformed into a scale ranging from 100 to 0 for each session of examinees.

The Percentile Score indicates the percentage of candidates that have scored EQUAL TO OR BELOW (same or lower raw scores) that particular Percentile in that examination. Therefore the topper (highest score) of each session will get the same Percentile of 100 which is desirable. The marks obtained in between the highest and lowest scores are also converted to appropriate Percentiles.

The Percentile Scores will be calculated up to 7 decimal places to avoid bunching effect and reduce ties.

The Percentile score of a Candidate is calculated as follows:

$$\frac{100 * (\text{No. of candidates appeared in the session with raw score} \leq \text{the candidate's Score})}{\text{Total no. of candidates in the session}}$$

MAH MBA CET Normalisation 2027: How Your Percentile Is Calculated

MAH MBA CET normalisation converts raw scores into percentiles separately for each session, so that candidates are neither helped nor harmed by the difficulty of their paper. The same method is expected for the MAH MBA CET Result 2027. The formula used in 2026 was:

Percentile = $100 \times (\text{number of candidates in your session with a raw score equal to or below yours}) \div (\text{total candidates who appeared in that session})$ Topper of every session gets 100: the highest raw score in each session gets the 100th percentile, whatever the marks.

- Seven decimal places: percentiles are calculated to seven decimal places to reduce ties.
- Total, not sections: the total percentile is not an average of sectional percentiles, and a percentile is not a percentage of marks.
- Merged list: session-wise percentiles are merged to form the CET score used for the result.

The official document illustrates this with four sessions whose toppers scored 149, 154, 157 and 161 marks; all four got the 100th percentile. This is why the same raw score can give different percentiles in different sessions. To estimate your percentile, use the MAH MBA CET score vs percentile analysis and the MAH MBA CET percentile predictor.
